FROM THE DEAN

Around the University, when someone is trying to describe an innovative program, it is said to be "at the cutting edge". (I first heard this said by a surgeon and it seemed all too nauseatingly apt!) It means that the program is pushing back the frontiers (machete images?) or out there walking the plank (tested by swords and sharks' teeth?) or otherwise in the forefront of new developments.

Much as I dislike the pretentiousness of the "cutting edge" phase, it describes where YSN is. And lately we've run across more and more examples.

At a meeting with some national nursing people in New York in February, both Tinker Barnett and I felt how far ahead YSN is of the pack in nursing education. We were discussing the three year program for college graduates and our listeners were astonished at what we thought was a rather obvious notion: that the program is all viewed as graduate education, in a sequence from "basic" to "advanced" practice. The quality of the program, in contrast to "basic" nursing in other sorts of programs, lies in its faculty's ability to achieve that level of instruction that makes the best use of the students' backgrounds and maturity as adult learners. A number of schools are considering starting college graduate programs and my advice to them has to be "don't do it unless you can put together faculty and curriculum at a graduate level," even if the proposed program will not offer advanced practice. We will do a disservice to these very excellent students if we aim for less. That's a "cutting edge."

The national picture for federal support of nursing remains cloudy (as I write this in February) but what is clear is that a higher priority will be placed on the preparation and utilization of nurse clinicians. YSN prepares nothing but nurse clinicians, the only school that does. The nation is slowly realizing, as we did some years ago, that short-term preparation in advanced nursing (the "nurse practitioner" training courses offered as continuing education) is at best a stop-gap measure, and doesn't really equip people to take clinical leadership. Graduate education that includes this advanced nursing does, and we are seeing more and more applications from people prepared in short nurse practitioner courses to come back to school for the education they need. Again, we've been at the cutting edge.

The ANA passed a resolution at the San Francisco Convention last June recommending the inclusion of research training in all Master of Science in Nursing programs. We've been strong there for years but it was getting to feel a little lonely out there when so many schools were dropping their thesis requirements. This is one cutting edge we'd just as soon share with others!

Finally, (or at least lastly -- there are lots of other examples) there seems to be increasing realization across the land that education divorced from service is anemic and remote. Florence Wald and her faculty thought that fifteen years ago (in the recent era; of course, the model of clinical instruction married to service served the "old" basic program well). Now we've created several different models of this crucial mixture and made explicit commitment to it in dollars, faculty appointment and promotion criteria, and time. Hopefully we've removed some of the evils of the old system for student experience by putting the emphasis on faculty responsibility to keep up and develop both their teaching and scholarship and their nursing practice, and thus be role models for students. But we're still rather far out on the cutting edge in this area, as other schools are just beginning to realize the power of this educational model.

It's the mission and mandate of the schools in great private universities to find their own cutting edges, sharpen them and keep them sharp. We must keep hacking away at stereotypes and the tangled vines of mediocrity that keep patients from getting the quality of health care they deserve, and keep nursing from making the contribution we know we can make.

FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE ALUMNAE ASSOCIATION

By the time you receive this Newsletter, it will really be Spring, with June fast approaching. The June Alumnae dates we indicated earlier have been confirmed with Friday, June 6th as Alumnae College, and Saturday, June 7th for Alumnae Day.

We consulted with a group of local Alumnae representing reuning classes, and followed their suggestion that there be a luncheon on Saturday leaving Friday evening free for reunion and other get-togethers. We are planning the program for Alumnae College to be of interest to each of you whether you are MSN or MN, recent graduates or some time ago. We are attempting to provide a selection of sessions from which you may choose small group or open forums devoted to what some of our Alumnae are doing; what students in the three year program think about their first year at YSN; and what some of our faculty and researchers are doing.

It is not too soon to begin thinking about your nomination for the Distinguished Alumna award. The forms for this and for the other events will be sent to you in late April. We are looking forward to another luncheon in G. E. B. this year with annual meeting and special events afterwards.

Please try to join us for both days, and find out what all your friends have been doing over the years, and also, see what has changed in New Haven.

- Dorothy MacLennan, '52

FROM THE EDITOR

In the past newsletters, we have presented articles describing the various practitioner programs. As a new mother I have recently used the services of the YSN nurse midwives and pediatric practitioners. Indeed, we can be proud of the quality of their work and the way in which they relate to their patients. I strongly urge all alumnae to continue to actively support the School so that the quality of the students, faculty and their programs can continue to remain at their high level of excellence.

- Sally Cohn, '73

FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE EXECUTIVE COUNCIL OF THE STUDENT GOVERNMENT

It hardly seems possible that this incredible student experience is nearly over. The past two years have been a time of considerable personal and professional growth for all of us. That growth was gained not only by recognizing and acknowledging our personal and professional strengths but by recognizing and facing our weaknesses as well, stressful as that may have been at times.

We leave now to join the ranks of Y.S.N. alumnae and to test our newly-acquired knowledge in the real, work-a-day world out there.

ELIZABETH TORREY (DEAN EMERITA)
SHARES IN THE FUTURE OF THE SCHOOL

This year Dean Torrey contributed a most significant gift to Yale's Eli Whitney Fund - a gift plan aimed at mutual benefit for her and the University...

Briefly, this is a gift to Yale with the understanding that the lifetime income earned from Mrs. Torrey's gift will be paid to her during her lifetime.

In her own words this is how she views this form of support.

It sounds generous to participate in the Eli Whitney Trust Fund, but you should understand that the donor benefits definitely - I get a regular income from Yale on which I pay proportionately less income tax than on income from securities. In my case, having no children or grand children to worry about (I have three very nice step-grand children but I think their fathers can support them adequately) it seemed reasonable that my heirs should share with YSN. And if I can set a good example to others, so much the better.

Why don't you consider such a plan for yourself - it's a safe plan for now and the future, and an investment in the future of YSN and nursing. What more could one want? Mildred Bushnell Yale '35 is our YSN contact with this Fund - please address inquiries to her at: Mrs. Mildred Yale
c/o Yale Alumni Fund Office
P.O. Box 1658

Your inquiries will be kept in strictest confidence.

ANNA E. RYLE, '33 TO RETIRE

A special meeting of the Executive Committee of the School was called at which Anna Ryle announced her retirement date, August 1, 1975. In December, Miss Ryle started her 24th year as Director of the Division of Nursing, and her 40th year at Yale-New Haven Hospital. She feels that this is the best time for a change in nursing leadership. Grace-New Haven School will be closing next summer, plans for the remaining faculty will have been made; the first year of our basic program will be completed and plans for the second year will be "jelled"; plans for the Medical-Surgical component at the graduate level will be well underway; and the Division of Nursing budget will be completed.

Miss Ryle said that she had mixed feelings about her decision to retire at this time, but will remain active in the Alumnae Association, and will continue to be interested in YSN's progress. She said that she would be happy to help in any way she can, and that she has appreciated her membership on the Executive Committee and the faculty of the School.

In June 1973 at YSN's 50th anniversary banquet, when Miss Ryle received a Distinguished Alumnae Award, the following citation was read which sums up all our feelings:

Anna Ryle

Dignity, dedication, decorum, and an almost divine sense of politics and propriety are hers. Without publicity or praise she has guarded the integrity of nursing and nursing education at Yale-New Haven Hospital since 1951. Her devotion to the Yale School of Nursing has never clouded her vision either of historical precedents or immediate needs. She has opened opportunities for students of nursing from many colleges and universities and has interpreted the changing nature of nursing and nursing education to her staff and her colleagues in medicine and hospital administration with supreme delicacy and tact. She has led, directed and served the Yale-New Haven Hospital through its years of growth and nearly overwhelming change with consummate balance and unflinching good humor.

The Yale School of Nursing and the Yale University School of Nursing Alumnae Association are privileged to present their Distinguished Alumnae Award to Anna E. Ryle, of the class of 1933.

REGIONAL GROUPS

The New York Regional Group is holding a Spring meeting on Saturday, April 5th at Cornell University, New York Hospital School of Nursing. Virginia Brown, YSN '50 will speak on "Comprehensive Health Planning In NYC. The Law - Concept and Reality". She is Executive Associate-Hospital Division of Group Health Incorporation in New York City and is uniquely prepared to relate to the concepts of CHP to the here and now. Liz Plummer, '46W, is the convener of this group.

Elizabeth Dyer Wertheim is planning the next meeting of the Philadelphia Regional Group to be held Wednesday evening, April 9th at the Cricket Club in Chestnut Hill.

Eleanor Taggart - Faculty Member
Medical-Surgical Program

THE MEDICAL-SURGICAL NURSING PROGRAM

A two-year graduate specialty program in medical-surgical nursing leading to a Master of Science in Nursing degree will begin in September, 1975. It is expected that four students will be admitted to the program. Graduates will be prepared as medical-surgical nurse practitioners. The focus of the program will be on the care of the seriously ill person, during the critical phase and the subsequent stages of the illness.

The concept of the medical-surgical nurse practitioner that has evolved includes the functions of the clinical nurse specialist. That is, the medical-surgical nurse practitioner is a specialist who provides a high quality of health care for adults in acute care settings and in extended care facilities.

Therefore, while the medical-surgical nurse clinical specialist has skills in promoting comfort, recovery and restoration of functions, etc., the medical-surgical nurse practitioner will also have skills in: health history taking; physical examination; analysis and synthesis of data; identification of a diagnosis; problem oriented recording; and patient care management.

The three subspecializations which will be offered are: oncology nursing, cardiovascular-pulmonary (includes renal) and neurology-neurosurgical nursing.

The subspecialization in oncology nursing is especially timely since the School of Nursing has received funds from the National Cancer Institute for the purpose of conducting a series of continuing education programs in oncology nursing. Also, Yale University Medical Center has been designated as one of 17 comprehensive cancer centers.

The medical-surgical nurse practitioners will be prepared for positions in institutions which demand excellence in clinical ability, leadership skill and the systematic approach to the improvement of practice developed through research training.

A special project grant has recently been submitted to the U.S.P.H.S. to seek support for the program.

FACULTY NEWS

Charlotte Houde C.N.M., '72, Assistant Professor, Maternal-Newborn Nursing Program, will be the speaker in Clinical Nurse-Midwifery Session on Wednesday, April 2, 1975 at the American College of Nurse-Midwives 20th Annual Convention in Jackson, Mississippi. Her topic is "Crunch Issues in Nurse-Midwifery Education".

Mimi Dye, '58 MN and '61 MSN, Associate Professor and Chairman, Psychiatric Nursing Program will be the keynote speaker at the 11th Annual Clinical Nursing Conference to be held at the Veterans Hospital in Cleveland. She will speak on "The Future of Psychiatric Nursing: A Crucial Time, A Critical Challenge".

Janice Ruffin, Assistant Professor and Director of Nursing at the Connecticut Mental Health Center has served on the Review Committee for Psychiatric Nursing Training Grants at NIMH this winter. Charlotte Januska, Assistant Professor and Chairman of the Community Health Nursing Program, is chairman of the Quality of Nursing Care Committee of the Public Health Section of APHA. They will be examining the current methods being used in evaluating community health nursing service, and hope to determine what methods need to be developed, in order to be prepared to provide evidence of quality care to consumers.

Katherine Nuckolls, '41, Assistant Professor and Chairman of the Pediatric Nursing Program and Roberta O'Grady, Assistant Professor, Pediatric Nursing attended the A.N.A. Maternal Child Health Convention in March in New Orleans, Louisiana.

Sandra Nelson, '72, Instructor in psychiatric nursing and clinical specialist, CMHC, was married January 18, 1975 to Don Nelson. We congratulate Sandy for preserving her place in the alphabetical listings!

CORRECTION of article in last issue.

John Schuman, M. D., lecturer in Community Health Program at YSN. He is on the faculty in the Department of Internal Medicine at the Yale Medical School, and is Medical Director of the Continuing Care Unit at the Yale-New Haven Hospital.

CONTEMPORARY PRACTICE ISSUES SEMINAR AND RESEARCH SEMINAR AT YSN

There were two contemporary practice issues seminars held this term. On January 29, Karen Marie Metzler, B.S., presented "Problems Facing Persons Handicapped in Our Society". On February 15, Susan Caghan, Clinical Nurse Specialist in the Adolescent Program, YNHH and Instructor in both Psychiatric and Pediatric Nursing Programs, presented "The Adolescent Patient and the Caretaking Process". On March 12, John Wolfer and Madelon Visintainer presented "Clinical Research: A shot in the arm or a pain in the ...".

ADMISSIONS - 1975

It has been a long and very busy winter season for this most important committee - without their thoughtful efforts and time there could be no YSN at all!

146 applications were processed this year for the new 3-year program.

96 of these candidates were interviewed and then the admissions committee had a most difficult job of selecting the 15 people they judged to be best suited for the YSN program. It is heart-breaking to say "no" to so many outstanding applicants. Notifications of acceptance were sent out on February 12th.

The number of applications for the 2-year program remains high - a total of 132 were completed. Final decisions will be made by April 15th.

SCHOOL NEWS

The Sybil Palmer Bellos Lecture this year will be held on April 9, 1975 at 3:30 p.m. at the Connecticut Mental Health Center Auditorium. The speaker is to be Nancy Milio, Ph.D., Lecturer in Health Services and Public Policy at Simmons College, Boston. Her topic is "The Health Professions: Preparing For Today Or Tomorrow?" The Wisser Tea will follow the lecture in the School of Nursing.

MEDICAL CENTER NEWS

Dr. Ebbert, Deputy Dean

Dr. Arthur Ebbert, Jr. has been given the title of Deputy Dean for the School of Medicine. This title is more appropriate in that it accurately defines his position and the responsibilities he has had for some time. The recognition is greatly deserved.

....VERITAS

An interesting perception by my students, as reflected in a conversation I overheard between a child and a new-comer:

"Oh, the R.N. after Mrs.'s name stands for Real Nurse. You can come and talk to her even if you're not sick and you'll feel better afterwards. She's not just a medicine nurse or a bath nurse -- she's a Real Nurse!"

CONGRATULATIONS!!

Sally Cohn, Class of 1973 - baby girl, Amy Elizabeth, born January 10.
Linda Dubin, faculty member in Medical-Surgical Program - baby girl, Elisabeth, born January 30, 1975.

CLASS NOTES

1946W - Dr. Jean B. Milligan has been appointed Director of the School of Nursing and Associate Dean of Nursing, Division of Health Sciences at the University of Vermont. Dr. Milligan has been a member of the UVM nursing faculty since 1953 and has served as Acting Director of the School since last January.

1947 - Pearl Turner Siegel writes that her children are all in or studying for medical or social services fields. Her husband is still in Family and Marriage Counseling at U. of P. and Pearl says, "I took my aching back out of nursing (MSW, U. of P.) and am a school social worker in Philadelphia. I miss nursing and occasionally serve as a consultant to schools of nursing. I always enjoy the news from YSN".

1954 - Laverne Fakkema who served as a member of HOPE's survey team to Iran and Egypt, has returned to her home in California after a 4-month tour. 1954 Jean E. Robinson is living in Hanover, New Hampshire, working nights on medical floors mostly oncology, at Mary Hitchcock Memorial Hospital. She has a son at Duke, daughter at Wesleyan, daughter at Northfield, daughter at Hanover High, and a son in 1st Grade!! Jean is representing nursing and YSN at Career Day activities at Smith College on February 13 and 14.

1961 Thelma Thornton, has been named coordinator of a recently established Health Services Unit in the Office of Manpower by New Haven's Mayor Guida. She will be responsible for health check-up services, on-the-job training for allied health careers, and the West Rock Neighborhood Health Care Unit. A multi-phasic medical screening van recently purchased in New Haven will be used for early disease detection. Thelma is a member of the Board of Education in New Haven, is a part-time lecturer on health education at Southern Conn. State College, and is a doctoral candidate in education at Nova University in Florida.

1965 - Jean Dunham Goss is still living in Japan, "is very busy with English classes (as teacher) and with Japanese conversation classes (as student), with flower arranging and tea ceremony classes and Baha'i activities."

1972 Did anyone see John Collins (Maternal-Newborn Nursing) on What's My Line recently! We've hears it's true!

1973 Anne Lyon Donabedian was married in December 1974 - moved back to Harkness Dorm - husband, 4th year medical student. They will be going to Philadelphia in June where he has an internship at University of Pennsylvania.

1974 Mary Baker writes, "I received notification from the 10th International Congress of Gerontology that the abstract I submitted last June was accepted for inclusion in their Book of Abstracts. I am already making plans for the trip in June. Boston and the V. A. are just fine. I am truly enjoying the independent life of the working girl."

NLN CONVENTION
May 18 - 21, 1975, New Orleans

Yale Dinner for Alumnae, present and former faculty, and friends of YSN
Monday evening, May 19, 1975 at 7 p.m.
Brennan's Restaurant
17 Royal Street

Price: $12.00 per person (reservations should be made in advance by returning the form below). Your check must be received by the School no later than May 15th in order for your reservation to be made. Your ticket will be held for you at the Yale Booth #818 and/or at the restaurant. Receipt of your check means a confirmed reservation and cannot be refunded unless our delegates are notified at our Booth by Monday morning at 11 a.m. If you find you can attend unexpectedly, you must tell the delegates at the Booth by 11 a.m. Monday morning.

Dorothy Sexton, Chairman of the new Medical-Surgical Program at YSN and Janice Ruffin, Assistant Professor of Psychiatric Nursing and Director of Nursing at the Connecticut Mental Health Center will be our official School delegates at the Convention, and they will be most happy to visit with you anytime. We hope you will feel free to use the Yale Booth #818 as a meeting place, message center, and resting place.

The Booth must be "manned" from 10-3 on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. If you are willing to help cover some of these hours, please indicate the times you might be available on the form below.

Please return to: Mrs. Mary C. Colwell
